Get Ready to Work

The Year was 1998, and big things happened that year. The Bulls defeated the Jazz, Disney released Mulan, Google just began to become a company, and Mr. March got his first official summer job. He became a meter reader. His job was to verify that whatever the customers sent in with a check was accurate. It was up to him to get the job done. He earned $1.25 a meter.

Are you ready to step into your summer job? Are you ready to be successful? We need to embrace every job that we have with a positive mindset. Devise short-term goals to prepare you for God's long-term plan.

Genesis 1:1-2

When God created the earth and the planets, it wasn't yet a completed, finished product.

Job 38:7

Mr. Armstrong wrote the same principle of duality also applies to the angels. They had their part, just like we have our part over the summer. We are going to have to use our job experience to prepare us and train us to beautify all of America and beyond. God is always proving our creation. He is wanting to see if we would give our all when we work. He is our ultimate boss, and he will see whether or not work will meet his specifications. Just like the angels, he gives us work to do.

Exodus 25

Lucifer was tasked to beautify and govern the earth. He failed, and purposely destroyed the earth. When Lucifer and the angels rebelled, they refused to "put the icing on the cake". They refused to do their job of beautifying, preserving, and maintaining the earth.

Practical steps to be a cut above the rest at work:

1. Get their early
2. Wear your good clothes
    a. How you look affects the impact of what you say
3. Say Hello
    a. Let people know that you see them and greet them with a smile
4. Sit with the high performers
5. Accept Criticism
    a. Your favorite reaction should be a reaction of thanks

b. Be humble and open to suggestions

While you work, realize that God is hard at work improving your character.
